Dedication.

TO

PRESIDENT GEORGE TAYLOE WINSTON,

IN TOKEN OF

FRIENDSHIP AND ESTEEM,

THIS VOLUME IS RESPECTFULLY DEDICATED

BY THE EDITORS.

Preface.

We take pleasure in presenting for your consideration this the third volume of The Hellenian. Though many issues are required to develop to perfection such an undertaking as this, yet The Hellenian is no longer an experiment, but a permanently established publication. We are well aware that imperfections are present, yet in its preparation we have labored hard and have left nothing undone which we thought would add to the enjoyment of our readers and, though we expect criticism, we present this issue with the satisfaction that we have put forth our best efforts. Having malice towards none, all has been written in a spirit of true college fellowship.

We would extend our most hearty thanks to all who have aided us in the arduous duties involved in issuing this volume.

Trusting that all as portrayed may prove enjoyable to you, we are, with best wishes,

THE EDITORS.

History of '93.

With all the ups and downs a class has to endure the class of '93 still stands her ground and dares any other class to challenge a comparison with it.

We numbered as Freshmen sixty-nine men, as Sophomores forty-nine men, and as Juniors thirty-five men, some of whom have already dropped out and many more are preparing to follow their excellent(?) example and do likewise.

Many of our members, after having successfully (and some unsuccessfully) passed the stumbling-blocks of a Sophomore, namely, Spring Chemistry and Conic Sections, have dropped out, and very much do we miss them. We miss them one and all and regret very much that they cannot be with us this year to share our pleasures as they have done in time past.

One of last year's number—W. P. Bynum, Jr.—during the summer was taken ill with typhoid fever and after an illness of six weeks died, much to the regret of his many sorrowing friends.

Last fall we started with twenty-nine men, and a former member of '92 joined us, and since Xmas we have been increased by three men coming from other colleges, an old member of '93 returning and a member of '94 deciding to graduate with us next year.

This year just passed has been one of many changes, the first of which was the abolition of hazing by the students; next the election of Dr. George T. Winston, then Professor of Latin, as President of the University to succeed Hon. Kemp P. Battle, who had resigned to accept the Chair of History; next came the many changes which have been going on since last September.

Among the changes were the renovating of the South Building, the removing of the terraces, the refitting of the chapel and making attendance at prayers compulsory, the changing of the system of grading, etc.

Probably it would not be out of place here to enumerate some of the many honors '93 has received this year. She has four men (including the captain) on the foot-ball eleven, four on the ball-manager ticket (including the chief ball-manager), a good prospect of getting three or four men on the base-ball nine, three out of the four inter-society debaters, the chief marshal and his six assistants (as required by law), and many other honors which a limited space forbids my mentioning in this brief and incomplete tribute to her glory.

Of our men who dropped out some are now pursuing their different vocations of life and others are studying for their professions; some are here in the law and medical schools, while others are elsewhere studying.

Already we have passed nearly three-fourths of our college course, and for us now remains only our Senior year, which we hope our class-mates will find as pleasant as they have found those that now are past. And now bidding our class-mates adieu, hoping that there may be only a very few who will not return with us next year, we are, sincerely,

Historian of '93.

History.

Of last year's class of forty-six men, Only thirty appear here before you again.

W. M. Hendren,  $\Delta$  K E,

L. N. Hickerson,

One we have lost thro' ling'ring disease, Several, also, who missed the seventies.

Some are in Banks, and some busy, some bumming. 'Doc' has gone to Cotton Mills humming.

A-farming is Kornegay, but little Kemp P. We fear is kept at home by his dadee.

Where the others are, we cannot tell, "Me Lord," we're informed, is doing well.

This year has given us Tom L. and Cherokee, Pomeroy, Atkinson, E. Carr and Currie.

Now last spring this class, old Ninety-four, Vowed they'd wield the brush no more, In consequence whereof no Fresh' have been blacked, But the cheekiest of them have muchly been hacked.

Of the Hillians here, nearly all will tell That the '95 Fresh' have behaved quite well,

And respect those Sophs., who in good sense Tossed "Mason's Best" spang over the fence,

And have verified the belief rather recent That the Fresh' are all right, if treated decent.

Of course there are some who grunt and whine, "ME you would never have dared to 'shine'!"

They're safe, they know, and hence boast thus, Knowing true the words of some sage old cuss,

That, "You can't pick up milk when 'tis spilt."
And, "When a sword is sheathed don't fear its hilt."

Them we've endeavored to befriend, and in kind Expect like treatment to those coming behind.

By Trig' and "Harry" we've been doubly troubled, Now with "Chemistry" and "Conics" our trouble's doubled.

But we can get through, we will, we must, Our motto ever, "In Luck we trust."

Once upon the foot-ball field, When we did think our fate was sealed, To the Gods immortal this motto we squealed, And "ye Seniors" immediately began to yield.

Venimus, vidimus, vicimus the score, Ah! Bless your soul, just sixteen to four.

But we confess, friend Seniors, 'twas not by skill That the battle was won, but by Jupiter's will.

Somewhat athletic, do we seem? Yes, we've two "subs" and capt on the base-ball team.

And by practicing, and coaxing, etc., I opine, We can put in the field a high old scrub nine.

We've swimmers and skaters and—but oh, shucks! You mustn't forget that we're honies at knucks.

Club-swingers, rope-walkers, e'en a pugilist, Chess-players, checker-players, players at whist.

O, ye moralist! come into view, And see what we've got that'll interest you.

Of course your head's filled with all the reports That we're a class of broken-down sports.

Sports we are, but as to the breaking, That's surely a yarn of some outsider's making.

But take some of these—reg'lar whistle-wetters— While we call up our canines, pointers and setters,

To let you see how in two-thirds of a minute, Though you say broken-down, yet still are we in it.

Half a dozen double-barrels, rifles and "pops" Suffice to clean up every varmint that hops.

And at evening when weary, ourselves to regale, We have Adolphus and Sikes mix a bowl of cocktail.

Then with feet on mantel and back down in chair From our long-stemmed pipes puff we rings in the air.

As the smoke floats upward with many a curl Each in it sees the vision of some sweet ——?

And smiling, sits there in dreamy meditation, Thinking of nothing else in all this Creation, But rouses up wishing everything in tarnation Except that beauteous one, Helen Dalmation.

But do we study after "dissipating" is done? Why, our finals range anywhere from 6 unto 1.

Above and below, mostly above, Gimmy and Chapel we dearly love.

When too heavy a tax has taxed our brain forces There waiting and ready are the B. Litt. courses, Optional and Imaginary, in them "you ain't in," For, for all your hard work, they fetch no sheep-skin.

That we must get, and always as fust, A-scraping and flunking, "In luck will we trust."

We shall be very careful, taking heed lest we fall, Having learned "Being a Soph is no good at all,"

As is thought by our many friends in the prep-schools, Who never have learned of those things—"wise fools."

We've had first year green and second year gall, And now carry dignity, in a ratio tho' small, Looking toward Juniorism early next Fall.

Many faults, why of course, but virtues accordin' Have made us recipients at the "honor awardin'."

In literary pursuits not far behind, Commercial, Scientific, all casts of mind.

Athletes, Doctors, Lawyers, Preachers, Engineers, Farmers, Journalists, Teachers, Artists, Merchants, and divers creatures "In futuro" are revealed in each one's features. With all our picquances of human "nater," Ever shall we cherish our old Alma Mater,

And strive, to ourselves and class, to be true, That when we leave here there shall be little to rue.

With the best of wishes and honest intent
The above few couplets have been penu't,
And that each of you, class-mates, may have six sons or more,
Is the prayer sincere of the ## History.

The Class of '95 marks the beginning of a new era in the history of the University. It marks the retirement of Dr. Battle from the presidency and the installation of Professor Winston in that office. It is the beginning of renewed prosperity for the institution, with a larger number of students and an enlarged field of usefulness. When we entered college last September, although we were not met at the train by the reception committee, which was promised, yet we were treated with all the politeness that could be paid to Freshmen. There was only one blacking spree, and almost all the Freshmen in the South Building had their faces "pasted." Since then there has been no hazing whatever.

Our class is one of the largest to enter here since the war, having a total enrollment of eighty-eight. We had been here only a short time when Neill Robeson, one of our class-mates, was attacked by typhoid fever. He was taken home, and after lingering a few weeks died.

On October 15th came President Winston's inauguration, at which were present many noted men, and on the next day everybody went to the Exposition at Raleigh. According to the custom, two Freshmen were marshals at the inter-society debate in November, and Turner and Patterson figured on this occasion. The Freshmen, not being blacked, became "cheekier," and one day a notice appeared on the bulletin-board, with a challenge from that class to the Senior Class for a game of foot-ball. The challenge was accepted, and after an exciting game the Seniors won, with the score 20 to 16.

The December examinations, which were the first we stood, were naturally dreaded by us, and their results justified our fears, for Professor Harrington threw us unmercifully, and no few fell on French and English. But Christmas holidays drowned all these sorrows under a flood of fun, until we came back and had to stand the examinations again. Several boys failed to return, and a few more names were added to the roll. The qualities of a "Fresh." showed themselves when a Christmas Freshman carried his Bible in the Society hall.

Freshmen must undergo great difficulties in order to hold a meeting. When the class was organized all the business was transacted during the intervals of silence, when the Sophomores overhead became tired of making a noise. And when we held, or tried to hold, a meeting in the chapel we were obliged to adjourn without even being called to order, on account of some interested spectators in the gallery. The cause of this concern for us is that we are without a yell or colors. Our class has taken a step forward in athletics by organizing a base-ball club to act as a practice team for the regular club. We elected Leak captain, Winston secretary and treasurer, and Graham and Robertson to act as an advisory committee for the captain. We are represented on the University club by Wood and Robertson.

Washington's Birthday was a momentous occasion for us. First, there was the annual oration in the Phi. Society hall, when Arrington and Patterson acted as marshals. In the afternoon the upper classmen met in the chapel and gave the following medals to the following honored gentlemen: Morris, fool's medal; Van Noppen, twister's medal; Winston, cheeky man's; C. Horne, dude's; Robertson, liar's; Welsh, medal for general cussedness; Pruden, lazy man's; Weil, borer, and T. Little, pretty man's. It is some satisfaction to the Freshmen that two higher classmen were favored.

The Class of '95 is an exceedingly fortunate and well-favored class. It has received comparatively no hazing, and its lot has been better than previous Fresh. classes. Then it is but right and just that we should give the next Fresh. class the same treatment we have received.

History of the Law Class.

The Historian, in view of the fact that a large majority of the students are ignorant concerning the foundation and history of the Law School, has thought that it would be fitting to give a short sketch of the same.

A Professorship of Law was established here in 1846, but the professor received no salary from the University; neither was he, nor were his students, subject to the ordinary regulations. There were two classes, the students of the first, or independent class, having no connection with any other department, and the college class, consisting of students who were also pursuing their studies in the University. Tuition in the first class was $50 and in the latter $25 per session, all fees being paid to the professors of the department. The full course occupied the independent class two years, at the end of which the degree of Bachelor of Laws was conferred on those students passing approved examinations.

The plan of studies comprised Blackstone's Commentaries, Cruise's Digest of Real Property, Fearne on Remainders, Iredell on Executors, Stephen on Pleading, Chitty's Pleading, Selwyn's Nisi Prins, Smith on Contracts, Greenleaf on Evidence, and Adams' Doctrine of Equity, together with lectures on the common law, having special reference to the legislation and judicial decisions of North Carolina. Moot Courts were held from time to time, presided over by one of the professors, for the discussion of legal questions.

On the transfer of the University to President Pool and his associates, in 1868, the Law School was abandoned, but on the accession of President Battle, in 1876, it was reopened with the Hon. William H. Battle, L.L. D., as professor.

In 1881 the Hon. Jno. Manning, LL. D., became the head of this department, which position he has occupied continuously since. For the past few years the number of students in this department has averaged about twenty-five.

This sketch is taken from the History of Education in North Carolina, by Professor Chas. L. Smith.

The history of the Law Class of 1891-'92 begins with their entering the University in September, 1891. The class then numbered twenty-six men, including the part of the class which left us in February, 1892, comprising Messrs. Bailey, Fleming, Gilliam, Hudgins, Lee, Parker and Ward. It is needless to say that every one of these obtained their license from the Supreme Court, as no one has ever yet failed to do so when holding Dr. Manning's certificate, so thorough is his instruction.

The Class of '91-'92 has always had one peculiar feature, viz., that it is composed of men of all sorts, sizes, and kinds, from the large "centre-rush" Hudgins to the little dude Arthur. Hudgins has left, but the large gentleman from the West and the tall, slim gentleman of Scotch descent fill his place well, both as to size and height, while the little authority on "Owling" still remains with us.

Messrs. Luther, McElyea, Tisdale, Toms, the Gatling brothers, the only original "Punch," and Davies, of Mangum medal fame, joined us at the beginning of the Spring Term.

This class, or rather the original "thirteen," as they delight to style themselves, broke the record last fall, going over more ground than any other class had ever done previously in the same length of time, and this being, as it was, a record-breaking year, shows that the University and the Law School are well abreast of the times.

Another record was also broken when one of the members of this class performed a hitherto undreamed of feat in passing on second Blackstone on the first perusal. But this feat has been again performed this spring. So that in this, if not in other ways, the Class of '91-'92 will leave a name behind it and a reputation to be handed down to the future "limbs of the law."

Soon after the organization of the class in September last the quarters of the legal shades were changed, and they soon found themselves comfortably located in very suitable quarters on the first floor of the Old West Building, whether for the better or for the worse it is not for us to say. shortly after Commencement there is a report that the "legal lights" will experience another change. It is said that the familiar old building, the Watson hotel, long now known as the haunt of many of the "limbs of the law," is to be torn down and a modern edifice of more beautiful and stately proportions is to be erected on the site thereof. And it is the earnest and sincere hope of all, the Law students especially, that at no very distant day an imposing and commodious building, to be called the Law Building, will be erected on some pretty spot in the lovely Campus of U. N. C.

And now, fellow-members of the Law Class, in closing, if any one of you should feel that the "law is a jealous mistress," and that there are many questions which seem to be Gordian knots, remember the words of Lord Coke: "Albeit the student shall not at any one day, do what he can, reach to the full meaning of all that is here laid down, yet let him in no way discourage himself, but proceed, for on some other day, in some other place, or perhaps on a second perusal of the same, his doubts will probably be removed."

And may we have the same wish, and may it be fulfilled, the wish so happily expressed by Mr. Blackstone, and thus live,

> "Untainted by the guilty bribe, Uncursed amidst the harpy tribe; No orphan's cry to wound the ear, Our honor and our conscience clear."

History of the Medical Class of '92.

This year our justly honored preceptor—whom Cupid assailed so vigorously during the summer vacation that he was compelled to unbind the fetters which held him in the thralldom of bachelorhood and seek refuge (not alone) in the sunny glades and dells of European lands—borne safely home by the kindly waves of the old Atlantic, has faithfully guided his class through the initial stages of the labyrinthine paths which lead to perfection in medical skill and science.

And right earnestly have they, to a man, followed him, whether it be through the horrors and disagreeable scenes of the dissecting-room or through the discussion of the numberless occult theories which form the basis of the "healing art." To his untiring efforts shall whatever success the class may attain in after-life be largely due, and certainly an air of gratitude to him pervades its whole history.

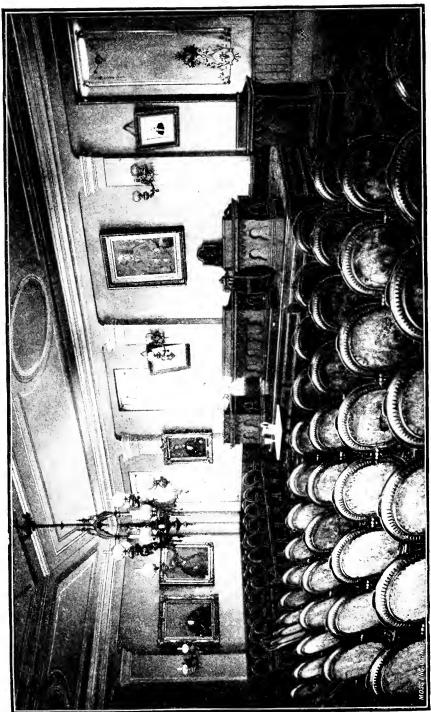

Still is the mystic number "thirteen" inscribed on our banner, and in that "thirteen" are those who are prominent in connection with other University institutions. The ex-foot-ball manager, the captain of the base-ball team, the "Director of Physical Culture," the "Darling Warbler" and a prominent "Basso" of the University Glee Club do credit to the class as members of it. Who shall say we are not proud and fortunate to receive such distinction?

The Historian lacks the qualification necessary for the writing of a fuller history, and with the above words ventures to commend the Class of '92 to the public mind, feeling assured that a physician's philanthropic pursuits must gain for him at least a share of human sympathy and human encouragement, for is it not he who stands midway between this and the spirit-land, struggling to conquer the grim monsters, Disease and Death? Is it not he who, in the effort to save a human life, often feels the keen edge of that monster's sword, and sheds his life-blood in that effort?

What man has a juster claim on human gratitude than he, and what man gets less of it?

Philanthropic Society.

The Literary Society of the University of North Carolina, now known as the Philanthropic Society, was established on the 1st of August, 1795, by Messrs. W. C. Alston, David Gillespie, Evan Jones, Henry Kearny, George W. Long, Nicholas Long and Edwin J. Osborn, with David Gillespie as its first president.

This society was first called Concord Society, and retained this name until August 29th, 1796, when its name was changed to Philanthropic Society, with Richard Eagles as first president under its new name.

Since that time its constitution, now a century old, has been carefully preserved, so far as has been practical and consistent with the new development and progress of the The motives which it cherishes and the objects society. which it pursues have always been twofold: First, the improvement of its members in the science and art of debating, in composition and the attainment of a good style, in the knowledge of parliamentary rule and modes of conducting public business. Secondly, the training and development of moral and social character. In all these aims the society has been wonderfully successful. There is not a single Southern State whose public and private institutions have not been moulded by its members. tive, legislative and judicial departments of them all, as well as their corporate and individual enterprises, have been ably guided by those who have freely acknowledged their obligations to the Philanthropic Society.

The influence of this society has played an important part in the lives of Southern statesmen and men of greatness and eminence in every department of life. To them it has been a school of oratory and parliamentary discipline; a place where moral and social virtues have been cultivated and warmest friendships formed. Nor has the good work of the society been confined to the Southern States alone; its sons have attained eminence in other States and in the service of the Union. As Vice-President, Cabinet officers, foreign ministers, Senators and members of the House of Representatives, they have been conspicuous for wise and faithful service.

Under the new rule and life of the University the Philanthropic Society has attained a high degree of usefulness; and so closely is the work of the society related to the general literary work of the University that neither could successfully exist without the other.

F. C. HARDING, '93.

The Dialectic Society.

In this University, second only to the class-room drill, in shaping the life and thought of its members, stands the Dialectic Society. Only those who have entered its sanctum sanctorum can appreciate its true worth and character. But although its inmost life is screened by the veil of secrecy, still it has certain well-known externals.

During the session of 1891-'92 it has numbered over ninety (90) active members, received many valuable additions to its already beautiful hall in the way of chandeliers and portraits of distinguished alumni, and quite naturally had its whole life quickened by the spirit of reform pervading the institution.

Recent changes in its organization have had the beneficial effect of stimulating debate, making it more general, and giving it decided precedence as a literary exercise. That healthy society-pride which for a century has characterized the Dialectic Society, spreading upon its walls the proofs of greatness and flecking the State's history with statesmen, still beats steady and strong, and with every recurring inter-society contest inspires and rewards its representatives. The Dialectic Society inculcates high ideas However careless a member may be in observing becoming decorum, however negligent in performing required duties, whatever else he may lack, one thing is essential, unsuspected honor. No member whose honesty was questioned, or whose honor was doubted, would be respected or tolerated. The Dialectic Society yields the first place to no similar body in the observance of the proper dignity and correct parliamentary practices. Happily within its hall those restraints of the class-room, due to the presence and records of professors, are all unknown. Perfect independence and absolute equality belong to all. There class-standing and social distinctions are forgotten. In this youthful democracy every one is valued and rewarded strictly according to his performance of society duties. The Dialectic Society has proven a choice field for the tyro of politics and the student of human nature. There we see the very springs of life at work. The impressions there formed are just, and the indications there given are prophetic.

Perhaps the society has never stood in greater need of staunch supporters of its rights and examples of its good influence than at present. That spirit of to-day which would depreciate the value of literary societies increases. The ramifications of our University's life constantly tend to usurp the society's proper functions, as may be exampled in the management of the Library and the practice of not requiring Law and Medical students to join the societies.

Viewing the past with pride and the future with hope, our sincerest wish is that the Dialectic Society may be able to adapt itself to ever-changing conditions so as to exert upon its future members the same magic power that gave us a Mangum and a Polk, a Badger and a Vance.

The Young Men's Christian Association of the University was organized in May, 1860, being among the first of the college associations of the world. Little, however, can be said of its early history, for it was soon to perish in the troublous times of the war. It was revived September 17th, 1876, to fill out a longer and more useful life. Ever since its revival the work and influence of the association have been steadily increasing, until now it occupies a prominent place in our University life.

One hundred and twelve students are members, and most of these take an active interest in all of its undertakings and in whatever pertains to its welfare. Brief and interesting services are held the first four nights of every week. The attendance is good and the meetings have been found quite helpful.

A new feature of the work has been introduced by the delivering of monthly sermons before the students by leading divines in this and neighboring States.

The gymnasium, organized by and formerly under the control of the association, has been handed over to the Faculty and will henceforward be managed by them.

The association also publishes each year a small hand-book which contains much useful information to old and new students, and it will be to their interest to apply to the Bursar of the University for a copy before leaving home. At the beginning of each term a thorough canvass is made among the new students to give all who desire it the opportunity to join with us. All those who are members of evangelical churches are admitted into the association as active members. Those not members of any church, but of good moral character, are admitted as associate members, having all the privileges of the active members except those of voting and holding office.

The association is by no means isolated in its work, but keeps in close touch with the great organization of which it is simply a part. By means of the District, State and International Conventions, the Summer Schools at Northfield and Knoxville, and such gatherings, the association is enabled to keep apace with the improved methods of work, and thus to render more valuable service to the students of the University.

The Yorth Carolina Historical Society.

KEMP P. BATTLE, LL. D. President,
H. A. BANKS, A. B. Secretary and Treas.

This society was founded in 1842 by Hon. David L. Swain, LL. D., who was President of the University at the time. Many valuable collections were made of old files of newspapers, legislative acts, books, documents and letters of eminent men of the past. The society was not incorporated, and Governor Swain, in fact, seems to have constituted the whole of it. Among other treasures he became possessed of the books and historical papers which Judge Archibald D. Murphey gathered while he contemplated writing a history of the State. In July, 1868, when the Reconstruction Acts went into operation, Governor Swain lost his place as President of the University, and soon after died without making any disposition of the property of the Historical Society. His widow, who was the executrix of his will, found a memorandum stating that certain bound volumes were its property, and these she turned over to Dr. Battle, then President of the University. Many rare autographs were sold to a Northern collector. Mrs. Swain bequeathed by will the residue of the papers either to the State or the University, as her executors, Hon. R. H. Battle and Judge Walter Clark, should determine. They left the matter to Hon. Wm. L. Saunders to determine, but he never taking any action in the matter, the executors decided in favor of the University. Their decision was reached by Dr. Battle's calling their attention to an act of the General Assembly of 1875, giving the North Carolina

Historical Society, which is located at the University, the right to secure these papers. Among them was found a fragmentary letter in the handwriting of John McKnitt Alexander, avowing the genuineness of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence; the address, in his own handwriting, of General LaFayette, at Fayetteville, on his visit to the United States after the Revolution; a most valuable collection of the old paper currency of the Colonies; files of letters from General Steele, Archibald Maclaine, Charles W. Harris and others, and other papers of value.

The present Historical Society was chartered by act of the General Assembly ratified March 22d, 1875, the following being the incorporators: William A. Graham, William Hooper, Thomas Atkinson, Charles Phillips, Fordyce M. Hubbard, Charles F. Deems, Braxton Craven, William H. Battle, Matthias E. Manly, B. F. Moore, R. M. Pearson, E. G. Reade, Nereus Mendenhall, John H. Wheeler, Z. B. Vance, Calvin H. Wiley, George Davis, Wm. Eaton, R. B. Creecy, General D. H. Hill, S. D. Pool, W. C. Kerr, W. Shakspere Harris, K. P. Battle, G. D. Bernheim, George V. Strong, Cyrus L. Hunter and Cornelia Phillips Spencer.

It will be noted how many of these eminent men have died in the seventeen years since the passage of this act: Governor Graham, Dr. Hooper, Bishop Atkinson, Dr. Phillips, Dr. Hubbard, Dr. Craven, Judge Battle, Judge Manly, Mr. Moore, Chief Justice Pearson, John H. Wheeler, Dr. Wiley, Mr. Eaton, General Hill, Professor Kerr, Mr. Shakspere Harris and C. L. Hunter. Mrs. Spencer is the only lady among the corporators. All will admit the eminent propriety of this recognition of her literary accomplishments.

Governor Graham called a meeting of the corporators on May 4th, 1875, in Raleigh. Rev. Dr. William Hooper was chosen the first president. After his death Judge John Kerr was chosen at the Commencement of 1877.

He was succeeded by President Kemp P. Battle. same time Rev. J. F. Heitman was chosen Secretary. was succeeded by Dr. Stephen B. Weeks, and on his resignation Mr. William Johnston Andrews was elected, who resigned at his graduation in 1891. At a meeting of the society on March 31st, 1892, President Battle presiding, Howard A. Banks was elected Secretary and Treasurer. The President then notified the society of the recent acquisition of Governor Swain's valuable collection of historical papers and letters, adding that the class in Historical Research would have the privilege of examining them and working them into papers to be read before the society, and for historical publications. The following were then enrolled as members of the society: Howard A. Banks, George C. Connor, Roland H. Haves, George L. Peschau, and Leonard C. Van Noppen.

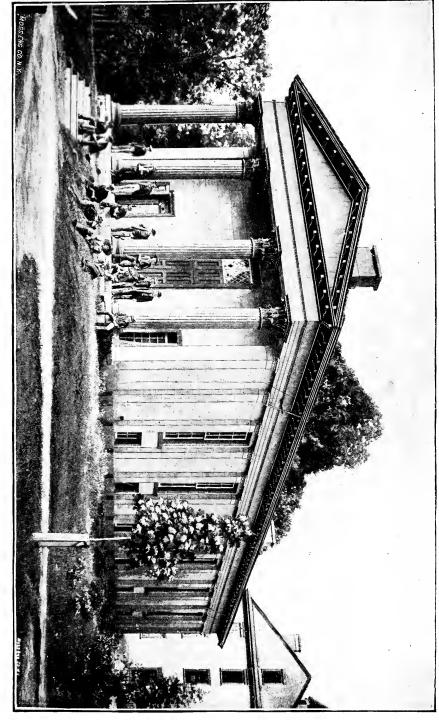

During the past year, 1891-'92, historical papers have been prepared, and nearly all of them published in the leading dailies of the State, by the members above-mentioned, as follows: By Mr. Banks, on Hon. Archibald DeBow Murphey and Hon. Waighstill Avery; by Mr. Connor, on Bishop Ravenscroft; by Mr. Hayes, on Hon. Samuel Johnston; by Mr. Peschau, on General William R. Davie, and by Mr. Van Noppen, on General Joseph Winston and General Joseph Graham.

It is the intention of Doctor Battle to develop still further next year the work by the society, and to enlist the aid of all patriotic North Carolinians throughout the State. It is proposed to establish an historical museum at the University next year, in which it is expected that the Dialectic and Philanthropic literary societies will combine with the University, as they have in their possession many valuable papers and letters, besides some interesting relics. This museum will be fitted up in an easily accessible room and will be quite an attraction to visitors, especially upon Commencement occasions.

The Historical Society has done much service already in elucidating the history of the State. Many publications of great value were made prior to 1861 in the North Carolina University Magazine, the numbers of which are much sought after by those engaged in historical research. Similar papers may be found in recent issues of the same periodical. Good judges say that in consequence of the permanent value of such contributions this is the best college magazine in the United States.

H. A. Banks, Secretary.

The Shakspere Club.

This is now one of the "institutions." It has pursued its onward way this session. The published scheme of work has been well-nigh realized to the letter. We have considered the great poet's method of dramatizing history, of compressing several events into one great incident without violating essential truth, of depicting the manners and customs of the people without sacrificing the dignity of a high We have seen him, in Richard the Second, lose the partisan in the patriot and compared him with the mighty master whom he learned to surpass in his art, Marlowe. Our "Love's Labor's Lost" evening did not at all answer to its name in our experience, as we rollicked with the merry French girls at the expense of the diletantte nobility who played at denying themselves for the sake of culture and broke down in the act under the spell of beauty and wit. We enjoyed the dialogue and repartee, laughed at the moustachio'd affectations of Don Armado and sympathized with the young Shakspere's common-sense theory of education. We had a pleasant introduction to his Stratford fellow-actors, Richard Burbage and Allevne. Sonnets were discussed carefully enough to give us a clear idea of their structure, and yet still to leave us in doubt whether "with this key he unlocked his heart," or was only poking fun at his contemporaries, Drayton, Daniel, Chapman, while he was outdoing them in a fashionable form of composition. The great tragedy of Lear was well studied by many, and good work was done on the old sources of the story by those who had read them "in the original," on the relation of the sub-plot to the main action, on the ethical ideas in the play, and on the characters of Cordelia and the monster daughters, on the place of the fool in such a tragedy and on old Tate's unskillful, vet once very popular, alteration of the masterpiece. We had from our artistic elocutionist, Mr. L. R. Hamberlin, most effective renderings of the insane old King and the fool in the tempest scene and the remarkable dagger-scene of Macbeth with its thrilling pantonnine. He gave us two expressions of the "Seven Ages" of "As You Like It," one seeming to us more in accord with the character of the Melancholy Jaques, as it was self-involved and sardonically quiet, the other full of facial and every other sort of gesture, a series of popular, broadly realistic pictures of each "age." Then we had the company of the wise fool, Touchstone, and of inimitable Sir John and Hal. one enjoyed the admirable paper on The Passion Play at Ober-Ammergan and its Relation to the old Miracle-plays and the thoughtful presentation of the Danish pessimist, We were well served by the comparison of antique and modern dramatic methods in Macbeth and The Agamemnon of Æschylus in an excellent paper on Destiny, Crime and Retribution, in the good discussions of the three unities and of Clytennestra and Lady Macbeth. We are closing the year's round of interesting exercises with inquiries into the French style of treating the unity of time and place, into the reality of the existence of gross-bodied old Jack Falstaff, and into the quality of Browning's dramatic poems.

The club has served its purpose of stimulating literary taste and cultivating literary faculty by taking one out of the routine of class-work into the free handling of congenial themes, of bringing bright spirits together in social fellowship and of affording to such as choose to take it some intellectual inspiration and enjoyment. The officers for this year are:

Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society.

OFFICERS FOR 1802.

PROF. J. A. HOLMES, State Geologist, .			President.
PROF. W. L. POTEAT, Wake Forest College,		. )
Prof. W. A. Withers, A. & M. College,			Vice-Presidents
PROF. J. W. GORE, University of North Card	olina,	}
PROF. F. P. VENABLE, University of North Ca	rolina	, .	Secretary.

The Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society was founded by three or four gentlemen connected with the University, on September 24th, 1883. The plan of its foundation was a broad one, proposing to include among its members every scientific worker in the State, and aiming at the fostering and developing of original work in natural science.

Its members are divided in three classes: Honorary, Regular, and Associate. Under the latter heading, students are encouraged to join and take part in the work of the society. Its meetings have always been very well attended by the students.

The success of the society along some of the lines of its work has been far beyond the expectations of its founders. It has finished eight years of prosperous existence. In this time more than sixty meetings have been held and over four hundred papers on various scientific subjects have been presented.

Many of these have been published in its Journal, which appears now twice every year with from one hundred and twenty-five to one hundred and sixty printed pages. In all, some eleven hundred pages have been issued, with a great many portraits, engravings and cuts. The students of the University have contributed about one-seventh of all the papers published in the Journal. These papers are reports upon original researches and show well the stimulus the society has given to such work.

Through donations, but chiefly by way of exchange for the society's Journal, a valuable collection of scientific periodicals and books has been secured, numbering now nine thousand books and pamphlets and increasing at the rate of more than one hundred monthly.

The exchange list includes over three hundred societies and scientific bodies, and all parts of the civilized world are represented in it. Scientific societies and institutions in eighteen different countries correspond with the society. They are distributed as follows: Canada, 10; Great Britain, 21; Germany, 41; Austria-Hungary, 10; Belgium, 3; Brazil, 1; Chile, 1; Mexico, 3; Netherlands, 6; Italy, 13; France, 11; Russia, 7; Switzerland, 12; Sweden, 4; Luxembourg, 3; Japan, 1; Portugal, 1; Argentine Republic, 2. The remaining exchanges are from the United States.

The library thus gathered will prove one of the most valuable adjuncts to scientific study in the University. It will be indispensable to any one making extended researches and investigations.

Short Snatches by the Glee Club.

It is not at all impossible that the old Troubadour when he touched his guitar,

As he was hastening home from the war, thought he was enjoying himself; but how would his happy dream have been dispelled could he have seen his modern representative, the Glee Clubbist, traveling on a special rate railroad ticket, sporting around the hotels, and clad in regulation full-dress, appearing before the foot-lights to make melody to enthusiastic audiences!

Pursuant to a notice posted on the bulletin-board, the present Glee Club met September 22d, 1891, and was organized by Karl P. Harrington, Professor of Latin. The first meetings were devoted to voice examination, and many a trembling Freshman found his voice growing faint and husky when he was instructed to sing the octave. Like a little lost kitten the club wandered from place to place. First the lecture-room of the Chemical Laboratory, then Memorial Hall, next the Y. M. C. A. assembly-room, from which we were driven by the indignant shouts of certain South Buildingites who had no appreciation of the vocal art, and who added to their vociferations sundry buckets of water and logs of wood, obliging us at last to take refuge in Gerrard Hall, which is now our recognized domain.

This spring the club has given eleven concerts and assisted at two others. We have thus had the pleasure of singing before some twenty-five hundred North Carolinians. The distance covered in our various trips has been seven hundred and fifty miles.

It is largely to the energetic and able direction of Professor Harrington that what success we have achieved is due. From the very outset he has taken an active interest in the club and given us liberally both his time and talent. At an early meeting of the club Mr. T. M. Lee, of Clinton, was chosen leader, and never were the subjects of a Turkish Sultan or Persian Shah more obedient to their lord's beek and call than we to the nod of "Graceful Tommy." During February our leader was obliged to leave us to take up the "profession of noverint" in his native county, and his mantle fell upon the shoulders of the poet, singer, artist, photographer and Professor of Geology, Hunter Harris, who has since filled this not very easy position to the entire satisfaction of the club.

OLD EAST BUILDING - UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA

The University Buildings.*

The following is a connected history of the various buildings of the University, commencing with the "Old East," the corner-stone of which was laid on the 12th of October, 1793.

The bricks of this, as of all the other buildings, except those in Memorial Hall, which were obtained from the Penitentiary, were burnt on University land. The lime used in the mortar of the early structures was obtained from shells brought from Wilmington by boat, thence by wagon.

The Old East continued in its primitive condition until 1824, when its roof was adorned by a third story nearer to the skies. At the same time the Old West was built of a corresponding size. In 1848 the length of both was extended towards the north so as to admit new society halls and libraries.

The lots of the village of Chapel Hill were sold on the same 12th of October, 1793, the price for all, about $3,000, being considered highly satisfactory. It was pressingly necessary to provide a residence for the President, or presiding Professor. The President's Mansion is the house on the avenue west of the New West building, which is now in the occupancy of our Professor of Physics. In that house were sheltered David Ker and Joseph Caldwell and Dr. Chapman, then it passed into the possession of Dr. Elisha Mitchell. President Caldwell, after his marriage to Mrs. Wm. Hooper, in 1809, removed to the lot owned by her and bought by the University after his death. The dwelling-house, which had the honor of sheltering three Presidents of the United States, as well as Presidents Caldwell and Swain, was accidentally burned on Christmas day, 1886. The old President's house contained, in the small room at the head of the stairs, the library of the institution.

PERSON HALL-THE OLD CHAPEL.

Having provided dormitories for sheltering the students, and halls for their mental instruction, the Trustees next addressed themselves to provision for their religious and moral training. The old ante-Revolutionary chapel of the Church of England, from which the place took its name, had gone to decay. A building under the control of the Trustees must be erected. When it was barely above the ground the treasury ran low. An old bachelor, one of that class which, having no immediate claims on its bounty, sometimes redeems by beneficence to public objects their failures in social duty, came to their relief. His name was Thomas Person. He was among the band of forty of the greatest men the State had in 1789—the first Board of Trustees of the University. As Senator from Granville he gave his vote for the new institution. He did more. He gave a sum in money very liberal for that day for the completion of the chapel. In grateful memory of his services to the State the General Assembly gave his name to a county carved out of old Orange. In gratitude for his generous gift the Trustees called the new chapel after him, Person Hall, or as it appeared until lately on the diplomas, Aula Personica.

In this hall Faculty, students and villagers worshiped for nearly forty years. It was likewise used on Commencement occasions. In it Judge Murphey delivered the first address before the two societies in 1827, and, among other eloquent orators, Judge Gaston made his memorable speech in 1833, which has gone through three editions, notwithstanding that it contained a hope for the abolition of slavery.

Although this building is named Person Hall, yet, because of its use as a church on Sundays and for morning and evening prayers, it gained the name of "the Chapel," and when Gerrard Hall was built the former was called, and is so known to this day by old students, "the Old Chapel."

About 1840 it was divided by partitions into four recitation-rooms. It was restored to a single room in 1877 for the use of the Professor of Chemistry; the woodwork was accidentally destroyed by fire in the same year and immediately rebuilt. In 1885 chemical laboratories were added on its western side.

GERRARD HALL

was begun in 1822. It was called after another Revolutionary hero, Major Charles Gerrard—not a bachelor, but childless. He was a native of Carteret, but long a resident of Edgecombe. His rank in the army (Lieutenant) entitled him to a grant of 2,560 acres, which he located at the junction of Yellow Creek with Cumberland River, not far below the city of Nashville.

This tract, the fruit of his toil and suffering and blood, he regarded with peculiar affection, and when he bequeathed this, with some 10,000 acres additional, which he had purchased, he requested in his will that it should perpetually remain the property of the University.

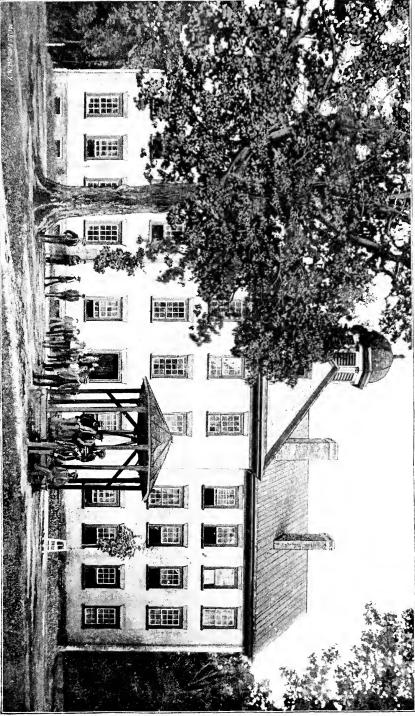

When this hall was built it was intended to have a broad avenue running along the southern wall, east and west. Hence the porch on the south side of the building. The merchants of the village claimed that this would injure their trade by diverting travel from Franklin street, and the plan was abandoned.

We will now turn to what we call the South, but what was known for many years as the "Main" Building. The European plan of a quadrangle—in old times a veritable prison in which the students were locked at night, was adopted, probably at the suggestion of Dr. Caldwell and Professor Harris, who were educated at Princeton. Its corner-stone was laid in 1798. Its walls reached the height of a story and a half, and then remained roofless for years.

To finish this building was the great problem of the young University. The Trustees in despair did not hesitate to practice what was common in old times, even for building churches and denominational schools, but which the sounder morals of our day make a criminal offense, the raising of money by lotteries. Their circular of 1802 announces with sanctimonious gravity that "the interests of the University of North Carolina, and of learning and science generally, are concerned in the immediate sale of these tickets."

Still the building was unfinished. President Caldwell mounted with heroic energy his stick-back gig and painfully traveled over the State in 1809, and again in 1811, soliciting subscriptions. His labors for the University were successful. He secured about $12,000, and while our people were going crazy over the naval victories of 1814 the rejoicing students moved into the completed "South Building." The corner-stone was laid the year when the great Napoleon gained the victory of the Pyramids, the year before he usurped the power of First Consul; it was finished the year when he laid down the imperial title for a petty throne in Elba, the year before his final ruin at Waterloo.

It was one of the grandest buildings in North Carolina in those days. It furnished for a third of a century halls and libraries for the two societies, which, before its erection, were forced to meet by turns in Person Hall. It should have been called in honor of the Father of the University, General Davie.

SMITH HALL.

In 1852 the Trustees did tardy honor to the first benefactor of the University. As has been stated, Governor Benjamin Smith, of Brunswick, made the first donation for the cause of higher education in North Carolina, namely, warrants for 20,000 acres of land in Tennessee. It is true they were not immediately available. were afterwards surrendered to the Chickasaws and subsequently re-purchased by the Government. It was forty vears before they were made available. They were ultimately sold for $14,000, after being broken up by the severest earthquake which has afflicted America since its discovery, into lakes and hills. The proceeds went into the endowment and were swallowed up by the great civil war, which, with more terrible voracity than a hundred earthquakes, engulfed so much of the wealth and population of the Southern country.

NEW EAST-NEW WEST.

Prior to 1850 the highest number of students was 170. After the discovery of the California gold mines, and consequent increase in the supply of the circulating medium, there ensued wonderfully prosperous times for all the world, and especially for our Southern States. The old North Carolina families who had carried their lares and penates into the fertile regions of the Southwest sent back their sons to their native State for education. Students swarmed into the University. They overflowed the old buildings and were camped in little cottages all over the town from Couchtown to Craig's. In 1858 there were as many as 461, of whom 178 were from other States than North Carolina. The New East and New West were built for their accommodation, finished in 1859. The two societies aided in a considerable degree in the construction and adornment of their beautiful halls and library-rooms. Probably no societies in America have superior accommodations in these respects, and I am bound to say that in my opinion no societies by intelligent and honest devotion to the purposes of their creation better deserve them. Long may they flourish.

The Gymnasium is the property of a corporation, whose stockholders are friends and alumni of the University. It was ready for use in June, 1885.

THE MEMORIAL HALL

was erected to the memory of David L. Swain, for thirty years President, and of all the departed good and great—Trustees, Professors, alumni—who have aided and honored the University. It is a memorial, too, of those gallant alumni who, at the call of our State, gave up their lives in the great civil war. Though God gave them not the victory, and though we will not question the wisdom of the decision of the All-Wise, yet we must always honor the courage, the devotion to duty, the high resolve and the willing sacrifice of our Confederate dead.

The tablets on the walls not only show the wide-spread usefulness of the University, but call to mind every important epoch in our State history, from the Provisional Government of 1775 to the threshold of the present day.

STATISTICS

OF THE

University of North Carolina

FOR 1891='92.

The following is a correct summary of the Statistics of the University for '91-'92. Two hundred neatly printed forms were distributed, and from them the result was carefully calculated. Those interested in such matters may find some pleasure in comparing the result this year with that given in the Hellenian for last year:

- 1. Average age, 19 years, 9 months.
- 2. Average height, 5 feet, 10 inches.
- 3. Average weight, 150 pounds.
- 4. Color of eyes—blue, 44 per cent.; gray, 30 per cent.; brown, 22 per cent.; black, 4 per cent.
  - 5. Color of hair—light, 22 per cent; dark, 78 per cent.
  - 6. Number of slice, 63/4.
  - 7. Number of hat, 7.
  - 8. A moustache, 11 per cent.
  - 9. Play foot-ball, 40 per cent.
  - 10. Play base-ball, 37 per cent.
  - 11. Play tennis, 66 per cent.
  - 12. Dance, 50 per cent.
  - 13. Smoke, 43 per cent.
  - 14. Chew, 19 per cent.
  - 15. Favorite novel, Ivanhoe.

A Wondrous Legend of "Chapel Hillians."

Albritton early one summer morning there started out from Eller-ton, Cherokee county, a jolly companie, namely, a Cooper, a Carpenter, and a Weaver—the last being a Batchelor, whose favorite milch cow had strayed from home, and he was going to Hunter; the first two being in search of Wood for their respective work-shops. And on they went, through Green meadows, where rippling Brooks ran smoothly o'er the Lee, like Little streams of melted grease from a sardine can. Suddenly the Weaver, the renowned Batchelor and Hunter, banged away with his Gatling gun at two long-legged Snipes which, arising from a Marsh near by, sailed away to a red Hill beyond. "Great Scott!" cried the Weaver, "I missed 'em." "Peschau!" laughed the Cooper, "your gun went off too soon." Without more ado they reached the Wood and halting, at length, before a majestic Ashe, the Cooper began to soliloquize thusly: "O, King of the forest! No Long-er are you in it; for we will cut yer down and Sawver up and Hamer yer into barrel staves." And the tree wept bitterly and said, "Alas! I have been Ruffin it these fifty years and have never vet been assailed by either Picks, or Spades, or Mattox, and now these come forth to down me! Torus! come forth and disperse the varmints, for my life must be sold at a big Price!" Torus came forth, with a bellow, too, and struck full tilt for the Cooper who, with a Weil vell, fell abegging his comrades to keep off the beast, while he climbed a cornstalk, sugar maple, or something of like nature.

"You Phol! You Phol! why don't you pull out and save your Hyde," cries the Weaver. But Torus was upon the poor Cooper and was fast demolishing him when the Weaver—for he was a Kenan—slipped up and rammed his boot-heel in Torus' nose and banged away a second time with his Gatling gun. Away ran Torus, but there lay the Cooper, reaching back for the seat of his trousers, which were not. "Great Scott!" cries the Weaver, "did I do that?" "Pugh!" sneers the Cooper, "I said you couldn't shoot." And the Carpenter c-Hoke-d with laughter. Danger now past, the three sat down upon the Banks of a little stream to clean up a noon-day lunch, the most important constituents of which were a baked Welsh rabbit and a Big(gs) chunk of Oldham wrapped in a Snowwhite kerchief. When the grub had disappeared the Weaver proposed that all should take a drink of Cherry-"Where, O where, mought it be?" screamed the bounce. "In you Barnes across the Hill." "Pray, then, Cooper. let us fly and Steele us some." "Well," said the mighty Hunter, his conscience Hard(n)ing because of his desire to distinguish himself, "come on, as singly one might strike a stump." Going through the Barn(y)ard, the Carpenter broke open the great White-lock of the Butler-y with a crow-bar stolen from a black-Smith's shop at hand. But they were loth to go in first. "Dav(e)-is the man to get it," says the Carpenter (for Dave was the Weaver's name). "You Ma(c) Call on me if you can't get there," put in the agile Cooper. Alı! Bless your Sowl. Slip the bung and we will Crow-(e)ll over the wittles." In jumps the Carpenter, poor im-Pruden-t man, and instantly he returned whirling into the Weaver's arms, the motive power being a Brown mare just inside the door. The Carpenter was murmuring of Green fields and Sandy Shores, for a Hayes had come over his eyes even as it did over Achilles at the terrible Battle. The Weaver Wince-d and the Cooper set up a tremulous Howell, fearing that his friend was about to kick the bucket. But the Weaver was the Boy-den who ran down to the Sand(y) ford, and bringing water, dashed it into his fainting comrade's face, and the fainting kid revived, and the fearful Cooper began to Walser round and t-Ingle all over, hunting for some-body to hug, and he took his knife and whetted it upon his Gait(h)er and cut a hole in the punch keg, and the merry draught began to Leak out by the Carr-load, and the Weaver did Turner round to Currie the Brown mare, and the Cooper seized his ink Horne and wrote his girl a Valentine, for he was glad and wot not that February had long since passed and gone, and the stray milch cow did eat much Oates and did Bask-er-ville in the sunshine.

SECTION OF LIBRARY-UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA,

Short Sketch of the Library.

Previous to the summer of 1886 there were three separate and distinct libraries at the University, that of the Philanthropic Society being over its hall in the New East building, that of the Dialectic Society being in the New West, and the University library being in the Old East. But in June, 1886, these three libraries were consolidated and the books of all were placed in Smith Hall, the present library. In this arrangement the books of the Dialectic Society were placed on one side and those of the Philanthropic on the other, while the University books were distributed equally between them. Also the volumes were catalogued by two separate books, one for each society. But this arrangement being very inconvenient, it was decided last summer to rearrange the library and no longer to keep separate the books of the two societies, but to classify according to subjects. Also the books have been all newly catalogued by the latest and most improved card system, so that by the present system one can find any book in the library without the least trouble, provided he knows either its title or the author.

The library at present contains between thirty-one and thirty-two thousand volumes. A carefully prepared catalogue of the duplicate books on hand has been made and these books are now on sale. The money obtained from the sale of these duplicates will go to the purchase of new books. Before the consolidation, the libraries were kept open only one hour per day. Under the new system it is open five hours per day. The librarian is elected by committees from the two societies and the Faculty, and is paid $350 per year for his services.

The library is gradually being enlarged. Each society invests $150 per year in new books and the University $200.

President George Tayloe Winston, II. D.

George Tayloe Winston, whose portrait appears on the 6th page of the Hellenian, and to whom it is appropriately dedicated, was born October 12th, 1852, in Windsor, Bertie county, N. C. He is the son of Patrick H. Winston, a leading lawyer and planter in Eastern North Carolina during the last generation.

The Winstons came originally from England and settled in Virginia, but subsequently spread out into many other States. Accounts of the family are given in all the lives of Patrick Henry, the great Virginia orator, whose mother was a Winston. President Winston's mother was Miss Martha Elizabeth Byrd, of Scotch-Irish family, and a relative of Colonel Wm. Byrd, author of "Westover Manuscripts," and Governor of Virginia.

At the age of eleven, George Winston was sent to Horner School and was there prepared for the University by that master teacher, James H. Horner. He entered the University in 1866, under the administration of David L. Swain, and was the youngest man in college. He joined the Phi. Society and the Chi Phi Fraternity. He was a pupil of Swain, the two Phillipses, Hubbard, and others of the famous old teachers. His scholarship was of the first grade, and in Latin it was the first in the class. The doors of the University were closed in 1868 and its students went to other States. Young Winston was appointed by President Andrew Johnson a midshipman in the United States Navy and entered the Naval Academy at Annapolis in 1869, under the administration of Admiral D. D. Porter. While in the navy he made a trip to Europe, visiting France and England. During his stay at Annapolis he was the first scholar in his class, but being much subject to nausea, he resigned his commission as midshipman in 1870.

In 1871 he entered the Cornell University at Ithaca, N. Y., under the administration of Andrew D. White, where he was graduated in 1874 with very high honor, having previously received the highest prize for Latin scholarship. He was now appointed instructor in mathematics at Cornell, to supply the place of Professor L. A. Wait, who was spending a year in Athens.

On the reorganization of the University of North Carolina in 1875 he was elected Assistant Professor of Literature, taking charge of the departments of Latin and German. At the end of the year he was promoted to a full professorship.

In 1884, Professor Winston visited Europe again to study Roman customs and antiquities, and spent several months in Italy and Germany. In 1885 the Latin department was enlarged and a new department of Modern Languages created, when he ceased to give instruction in German and became Professor of Latin.

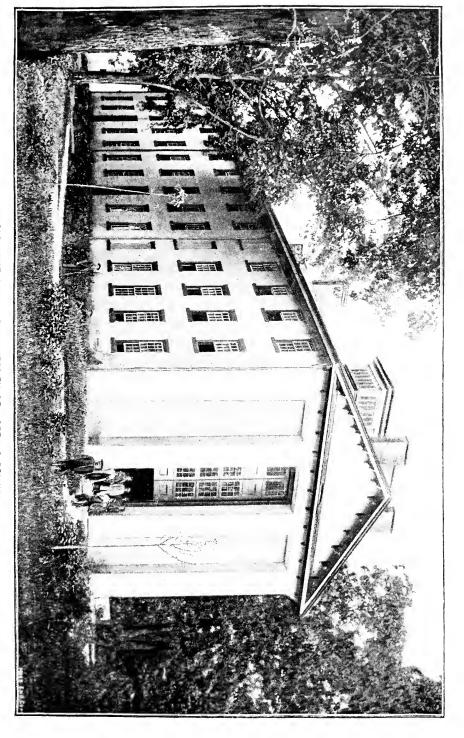

The scholarly attainments and extended reputation of Professor Winston have been noted by all the institutions of our State, and Davidson College has conferred upon him the degree of A. M., Trinity College that of L.L. D., and the teachers of North Carolina have twice elected him president of their Assembly.

In 1891 he was unanimously elected President of the University of North Carolina. Into this position Doctor Winston brought a large acquaintance with the methods and systems of other institutions, both as student and instructor, and is progressive enough to accept what is good; yet he is thoroughly identified with North Carolina and the South by birth, by education, and by sentiment. As an instructor in Latin his old students are almost unanimously of the opinion that his superior cannot be found south of Mason and Dixon's line, and few men are his peers. As President it is generally conceded that the great influence of the University will be extended and its permanent prosperity will be secured.

In June, 1876, Doctor Winston was married to Miss Caroline S. Taylor, of Hinsdale, New Hampshire, who had been a student at Cornell in 1873 and '74. Doctor and Mrs. Winston have four children, of whom the eldest son is nearly ready to enter the University, and the only daughter is now at St. Mary's.

1891.

JULY 24.—Blowing Rock. "Laura's dead."

SEPT. 2.—University re-opened. "Fresh."

SEPT. 3.—"Hawks," Brooks and Professor Harrington arrived on the Hill.

SEPT. 13.—Bishop Roudthaler, of Salem, preached before Y. M. C. A.

SEPT. 15.—"Tommy" Hume disagreed with Lord Macaulay in Essay on Milton. Howard Rondthaler faints same afternoon.

SEPT. 21.—Faculty, headed by Wilkes and Wince, looking for the blacking crowd.

SEPT. 22.—Glee Club met for reorganization.

SEPT. 23.—Professor H. V. Wilson (bachelor) uses Mrs. Holmes tablecloths for bed-sheets! Suspension of Sophomore for blacking.

OCT. 12.—Lost! Buck Alex's feet, Barnard's mouth, and Mike's nose. If anything like them is found, the finder is entitled to it.

OCT. 14.—Dr. Geo. T. Winston inaugurated President of U. N. C. Speeches by Page and Gilman. German at night in "gym."

OCT. 15.—Special train left for Southern Exposition, carrying 200 Hillians. Miss C—— wanted to kiss "Little Patty with the big brown eyes."

Oct. 16.—Colonel Walter L. Steele died—a loyal friend and supporter of the University. Memorial services held in his honor.

Oct. 21.—One class in English dismissed sharply as the bell rung.

Nov. 4.—Conversation between Brown and Smith. Snbject, Sawyer: "Can it sing?" "I'm not quite certain, but don't think it can. Didn't get on the Glee Club, anyhow!"

Nov. 10.—Foot-ball! Wake Forest vs. University. Game forfeited to W. F. Score: University, 6; Wake Forest, 4.

Nov. 10.—Young Lady (to W. F. Student): "How did the foot-ball game with the University result this afternoon?"

W. F. Student: "Oh, we beat them."

Young Lady: "How much?"

W. F. Student: "Well—er, the score stood 6 to 4 in favor of the University boys."

The young lady is still puzzled to know how this can be.

Nov. 14.—Inter-Society Debate. Query: Resolved, That England is justifiable in maintaining Turkish supremacy. Victory for Di's, represented by Messrs. Eller and Lee.

Nov. 15.—(Tom Little to Pruden): "Say, Hawks, I want to borrow that face of yours."

Pruden: "Can't lend it, old man; want it to fight dogs with."

Nov. 20.—Foot-ball! Trinity College, 6; University, 4. Dr. Venable, with hat off: "Go it, Sam! Go it!" while Ashe was making remarkable run of 95 yards.

Nov. 22.—Tom Smith is unable to "see in it."

Nov. 24.—Tennis Tournament ended. Prize and championship won by Willard.

Nov. 25.—Pleasant Peace Party arrive in Durham to spend Thanksgiving. Also several Hillians.

Nov. 29.—Snow, Kenan and Peschau decide never to visit Durham again. Why?

DEC. 4.—First Grand Sale of MSS. rejected by University Magazine. The following were disposed of:

"A Broken Straight, or How to Bluff at Poker," by Wallace Rollins and Howard Rondthaler.

"Seven Days in Raleigh, or One Week off the Hill," by Hendren.

"Myself, What I Am, and What I Should Be," an Egotistical Essay, Frank Batchelor.

"Jocose Sayings and Nursery Rhymes," by Tiddledywinks Arthur.

DEC. 6.—Coupling broke and University train came in on time!

DEC. 11-23.—Fall Examinations commence and end. Christmas vacation begins.

1892.

JAN. I.—New resolutions made.

JAN. 5.—University re-opens and new resolutions broken.

JAN. 9.-Five inches of snow fell.

JAN. 16.—Compromise affected in election of ball managers. Boyden elected chief.

JAN. 16.—Weather still cold. Mike and Stronach "borrow" (?) half a load of wood from the Faculty.

JAN. 19.—A large and tempting green frog broke loose in Biological Laboratory. Hendren thought he saw the same animal in Raleigh.

JAN. 21.—Wince hacked and "downed" in Chapel.

There was a college president,

His name was G. T. W ---;

He said one morning at Chapel Prayers:

"Young gentlemen, allow me to trouble you;

If you want to get rid of a tiresome man,

Don't make a great noise with your heels;

Just cough a little"—they tried it on him,

And he knows just how it feels.

-Tune, Michael Roy.

JAN. 22.—Concert by University Glee Club in Chapel.

JAN. 23.—Election of Chief Marshal. J. C. Biggs elected.

JAN. 25.—Split in Conservative Party, occasioned by the withdrawal of the  $\Delta$  K E,  $\Sigma$  A E and K A Fraternities.

Jan. 27.—Josh Gore's experiments in Natural Philosophy worked to-day.

JAN. 28.—Concert in Raleigh by University Glee Club. Why did Miss H— want to kiss Buck Snow, and why didn't Ep. Willard look like a countryman when the "chords" were struck?

JAN. 31.—Hawks Pruden, Guthrie and Ashe attended religious service to-night.

FEB. 4-5.—Glee Club Concerts in Winston-Salem and Greensboro. Why was Hendren's and Ashe's board-bill no more than $0.17 apiece?

Conversation between Arthur and a G. F. C. girl:

Arthur: "And why do you call me 'birdie'?"

G. F. C. girl: "Why, I thought you all were gay birds, and, as you seemed to be the baby bird, I called you 'birdie' of course!"

Feb. 8.—Professor Hart, Harvard, lectures for one week on political and social subjects.

FEB. II.—Second sale of rejected MSS. of University Magazine. The following gotten rid of:

"Vocal Music, Without a Teacher," by Sawyer.

"Art of Self-defense," jointly by Van Noppen and Collins.

"How to Woo and Win"; or, "Hymen's Art as I Practice It," by Cherry Street Gilmer.

"Complete Guide and Directory to Durham," by Willard.

FEB. 12.—Durham, N. C. Concert by University Glee Club. Fires in Chapel Hill at Professor Williams' and Captain Payne's. Heroic service by a young lady at the latter.

FEB. 21.—Duet in Chapel by Jamie Sawyer and Jumbo Crowell.

FEB. 22.—Dance given by German Club.

FEB. 25.—Professor Hamberlin, of Richmond, Va., gives a recital in Chapel.

FEB. 29.—All members of Chapel Choir present except Hoke.

MARCH 5.-Mid-term Examinations commence.

MARCH 14.—Logic examination. Buck Snow, Roudthaler and sixteen others fell.

MARCH 15.—Was the Bath "liqued" or was it "licked"?

MARCH 18.—Death of Judge John A. Gilmer, of Greensboro. Memorial services held in his honor.

APRIL 11.—Yates answered one question correctly under "Tommy" Hume.

APRIL 12.—A Field-day in Fights! Van N. vs. C.! Lawyer B. vs. "M."! "Chopsie" vs. "M."!

APRIL 14.—Reception and dance in Durham, complimentary to party from Peace and Chapel Hillians.

APRIL 15.—Rob. Gatling summoned before the Faculty because Wince heard "Skinny" Williams' dog bark in Campus!

APRIL 16.—Base-ball: Guilford College vs. U. of N. C. Score, 14 to 1 in favor of University. Chapel Hill invaded by a "Pleasant Party from Peace."

APRIL 18.—Glee Club Concert repeated in Durham. Easter German. 7. P. M., Biggs and Peschau fall in love, and—4 A. M., fall out!

APRIL 19.—Peschau (9 A. M., in Durham): "Jim, please don't make me get up. Just give me fifteen minutes more to dream of Her!"

APRIL 23.—Oak Ridge Institute vs. University of North Carolina. Base-ball! Score, O. R. I. 4, U. N. C. 7. What's the matter with Wood and Hendren?

EIGHTEEN VEARS BACK.—Grand Exchange: Bailey Lee traded legs with a killdee and cheated the killdee!

APRIL 25.—Field-day contests. Very interesting.

APRIL 27.—University base-ball team defeats Davis School at Winston. Score, 6 to 2.

ADDENDA.—Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society, Y. M. C. A., Poker Club, Shakspere and Liar's Clubs and Anti-Calico Club met regularly during the session.

SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

OF THE

SUNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA.

The Session of 1892-'93 will open the first Thursday in September, and last nine months. This School is designed to furnish the medical student with as complete instruction as possible in those subjects which constitute the foundation of medical science, but which too frequently do not receive the attention they merit, and to thus facilitate his subsequent labors by enabling him to study the higher branches of medicine with intelligence and success. Its connection with a well-equipped University makes it superior to a year's reading under any preceptor, while it is believed that it will compare favorably with the first year course of our best medical colleges. The course comprises instruction in Chemistry, Physics, Anatomy, Physiology and Histology and Materia Medica. Every endeavor will be made to give students a practical knowledge of anatomy; dissecting is compulsory, and the use of the microscope will be taught.

THE NEW WEBSTER'S DICTIONARY

A GRAND INVESTMENT FOR FAMILY OR SCHOOL.

The Authentic Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, comprising issues of 1864, '79, and '84, (still copyrighted), has been thoroughly revised and enlarged, under the supervision of Noah Porter, D. D., LL. D., of Yale University, and as a distinguishing title, bears the name

WEBSTER'S International Dictionary.

The work of revision occupied over ten years, more than a hundred editorial laborers having been employed, and over $300,000 expended before the first copy was printed. Everypage has been treated as if the book was now published for the first time.

Critical comparison with any other Dictionary is invited.

Sold by all Booksellers.-Descriptive Pamphlet free on application.

Caution is needed in purchasing a dictionary, as photographic reprints of an obsolerand comparatively worthless edition of Webster are being marketed under various names and often by misrepresentation.
